

PRESS

In her own sensitive style, ídaBjörg sets the tone and generously shares her musical tales with listeners. She is a singer and songwriter to the core, and she has been curiously experiencing and portraying life through her own music since age 9, when she first began scribbling down piano pieces.

The interplay of contradictions, be it auditory or human, fascinates ídaBjörg, whose Icelandic and Russian roots add flavours of fragility, drama, intimacy and grandeur to her musical universe, as she flows elegantly between genres such as pop, soul, country, electronica and jazz.

ídaBjörg has toured both Germany, Spain, North America and many other places, and she always skillfully engages audiences with her intense and authentic touch. As a soloist, she brings her sincere songs into people's living rooms, for intimate, acoustic shows, sometimes spiced with effects that allow her to create beautiful layers of vocal harmonies. When taking the big stage, she brings along a talented and experienced band that has a way of opening up her songs and giving them a new, powerful expression. ídaBjörg is currently working on new music with her band.